The 4th Sunday of Lent (Laetare Sunday) (Year C) - 31 March 2019

Mothering Sunday is a day when rightly we give thanks to God for our mothers, living and departed. It's origins however are seen in the entrance antiphon for today's Mass, which also gives us the reason for the rose-coloured vestments – the distinctive colour also used on the third Sunday of Advent. "Rejoice, Jerusalem, and all who love her. Be joyful, all who were in mourning; exult and be satisfied at her consoling breast." In Latin: Laetare!

The image of Jerusalem as a mother is a reference to the Church, which is seen as the new Israel - the chosen people of God now drawn from all the nations of the world, whose worship is centred not on the Temple but on Christ himself. The prayers for the dedication of a church building refer to the Church as 'mother of countless children' – we are joined in a single family with the saints in heaven as well as our brothers and sisters on earth and those in between. The church as a mother brings us to birth (baptism), feeds us (the eucharist), tends to us when we are sick (anointing), forgives us (confession), and prepares us for life in the world and in the service of God (confirmation, and the sacraments of vocation – marriage and ordination). And so, we should love the church, including the earthly manifestation of it, which is constantly purified and made holy by Christ its head and thus transcends its limitations to signify that perfect communion of heaven which it is preparing us for.

The "Year C" readings for this week include the well-known parable of the prodigal son – a parable which gives us an insight into the depth of God's love for us and his overflowing mercy as, like the father in the parable, he eagerly awaits our turning back to him when we have gone astray. St Cyprian said, 'whoever has God as Father has the Church as Mother.' The "Year A" readings, used at the 10.30 am Mass this Sunday for the celebration of the second Scrutiny – one of the preparatory rites for those being baptised at Easter – is the healing of the man born blind. In this gospel, the restoration of physical sight is a symbol of the gift of faith which allows us to see things as they truly are. In the light of faith, we recognise the church as the body of Christ and a means for our salvation, and we rejoice in this gift, and the new members soon to be joined to it in baptism.

The family is the 'domestic church', a microcosm of the universal Church. In the family parents, hand on the faith they have received and form their children in the light of Christ, so that their lives can be a constant offering of praise to God. With the celebration of the Mass as the source and summit of all they are and do together, they are fully a part of the body of Christ, the family of God. During Lent we have been thinking about the virtues – next week we conclude this series with the virtue of Justice – and so we should not forget that the family is also a school of virtue. It is within the family first of all that children – and parents – are able to learn and practice those virtues which are key to living a good life marked by love of God and neighbour. The first lesson is a child's experience of the unconditional love of its parents, and the love that its parents have for each other – love that strives to be patient and forgiving, acknowledging faults, and always seeking to do better.

Today then let us give thanks for our mothers and for holy mother Church, let us also give thanks for those who exercise a spiritual motherhood including our godmothers, and those women who dedicate their lives to God in prayer or in service of the poor and needy; finally let us pray for all mothers, and all for whom this day is painful for whatever reason.
